A FAIR HEARING.

Prohibition Should be Heard Fairly.
Recommended by a Congressional Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The senate committee on education and labor, at its meeting to-day, ordered favorable reports on the following: Senator Blair's bill to restrict the sale of opium in the district of Columbia and the territories; house bill to establish a department of labor; senate joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution forever prohibiting the manufacture, importation, exportation, and sale of spirituous liquors in the United States.

Gen. Grant's Birthday.

NEW YORK, April 27.—In commemoration of the anniversary of the birthday of Gen. Grant an elaborate banquet was given at Delmonico's to-night. As was most fitting the arrangements for the affair were made by the old comrade of the dead general and president, General W. T. Sherman. About 150 persons were present, the walls of the banquet room were almost concealed with flags and bunting, and at the head of the room were three oil paintings, representing the dead soldier in both his military uniform and in civilian's dress. The seat at Gen. Sherman's table, which was to have been occupied by the late Roscoe Conkling, was vacant, and on the chair was hung a heavy wreath of laurel. Each table was presided over by some distinguished soldier, statesman or man of affairs, and on each side of the presiding officer were seated six or seven others.

Death of Mrs. D. O. Mills.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Jane Templeton Mills died at the residence of her husband, D. O. Mills, last evening. For several years Mrs. Mills had been in poor health. She was accustomed to spend several months every year at her beautiful suburban villa at Millbrae. Last summer she was very ill there, and was not expected to live. She rallied, however, and was able to return to the east. Mrs. Mills was known for her charming social qualities, and for her many private charities. She left two children, a daughter, who is the wife of Whitlaw Reid, editor of the New York Tribune, and a son, Ogden Mills.

Snow Sheds Burned.

CHICAGO, April 27.—A dispatch from Butte, Montana, says: A passenger engine set fire to the snow sheds near Mullan tunnel in the main range of the Rocky mountains, at the crossing of the Northern Pacific road yesterday. Over 1000 feet were burned. Trains will be delayed several days.

France Releases Them.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—A cable message was received at the department of state to-day, from Minister McLane, at Paris, announcing the release of Fruehier and Arbios, two naturalized American citizens, who were held by the French government for military service.

Worth Knowing.

Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla., was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing cough and running into consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced in flesh, had difficulty in breathing and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and found immediate relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles found himself well and has had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures, as Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. Guaranteed to do just what is claimed for it.—Trial bottle free at H. W. Cox's drug store.

HOW THE NORTHWEST WAS SAVED.

Oregon and Washington Territory are bound to the Union by iron bands. More than forty years ago a statesman came near trading them off to Great Britain. The foresight of a home missionary, Dr. Marcus Whitman, saved them to the nation.

Dr. Whitman had crossed the plains and the mountains to Oregon, and knew, from a few years' residence, the value of the country. He also knew that the Hudson Bay company were anxious to obtain possession of the whole northwest, and had circulated the report that it was impossible for emigrants to cross the mountains in wagons.

At a dinner given in 1842, where the doctor and several of the company's chief officers were present, news was received that a band of British emigrants had crossed the mountains. Toasts were drunk in honor of the event. "Now the Americans may whistle; the country is ours," said one of the Englishmen boastfully.

"God helping me the country is not yours," said the doctor to himself as he left the table. The next day he started for Washington on horseback. He made the journey in winter, and with frozen limbs called on Daniel Webster, the secretary of state. On presenting his case, he was bluntly told by Mr. Webster that the country was worthless.

"Wagons cannot cross the mountains," said the secretary. "Sir George Simpson, who is here, affirms that I am about trading that worthless region for some valuable concessions in relation to the Newfoundland fisheries." Finding that a treaty had been approved by the senate, and was awaiting formal ratification and the signature of President Tyler, Dr. Whitman sought the president. After listening to his story, Mr. Tyler said:

"Mr. Whitman, your frozen limbs and leather breeches attest your sincerity. Can you take emigrants across the mountains in wagons?"

"Give me six months and I will take 1000 emigrants across," answered the doctor.

"Well," replied the president, "if you take them across, the treaty shall not be ratified."

"In 1843 a band of immigrants under the guidance of the doctor, started from Missouri to Oregon."

A deputation from the Hudson Bay company met them on the plains, who affirmed that it was impossible to cross the mountains with the wagons. The immigrants almost decided to leave their wagons and finish the journey on horseback.

And this course would have ruined Dr. Whitman's plan of saving Oregon to the United States. He labored with the leaders of the band until they consented to follow the doctor's advice and guidance.

The band did cross the mountains in their wagons; the treaty was not ratified, and the fertile northwest was saved to the nation.—Youth's Companion.

Prayers From a Political Standpoint

A minister visiting a congressman's family in the West End, conducted family prayers the first morning after his arrival, at which the congressman was not present, and the small boy of the house interviewed him at breakfast:

"What was that you prayed for?" he inquired abruptly.

"Why Johnnie," expostulated the mother, "you must—"

"Oh, let him go on," said the minister with a smile; "I love to hear these innocent little prattlers. You want to know, my child, what I prayed for?"

"Yes, sir," responded the boy, politely.

"Well, I asked the Lord for wisdom, for guidance, for protection—"

"That's it," said the boy, interrupting him; "that's it. You prayed for protection?"

"Yes, my boy," replied the surprised minister.

"Well, you can't do it any more in this house. My pa is a free trader, and if he gets on to your racket, he'll raise a row with you, sure."

Explanations followed, which removed the limit from the minister's petitions.—Washington Critic.

Indians in Demand.

A man named Edwards came from Iowa about ten days ago to secure two or three Umatilla Indians to use in selling a patent medicine, for which he is agent. He found three Indians who were willing to go, but agent Coffee would not give his consent to their departure until permission had been obtained from Washington. Edwards telegraphed for the desired permit but received a negative reply, so last Friday he left with Donald McKay, who has been in the service before, intending to go to Washington and see what he can do by personal influence. He conducts his business on the same plan as the Vigor of Life company, which was here last fall. He agreed to pay Donald McKay a salary of $30 per week.—East Oregonian.

Prohibition in Kansas.

Gov. Martin is quite enthusiastic over prohibition in Kansas. He claims a degree of general prosperity far surpassing anything before known in that state, depending on the prohibitory laws. "In 1880 only 8,858,000 acres were planted to crops, but in 1887, the area planted exceeded 15,000,000. In 1880 the value of farm crops was $84,251,000, but in 1886 the value was $204,000,000." He adds that towns and cities that languished, or were at a stand still, after the abolition of the saloon at once revived, and began to develop. This, no doubt, demonstrates the value of morals to the material prosperity of a community. A saloon never contributed to any feature of civilization and enlightenment.—Globe-Democrat.

Agriculturist—"Well, if the drawin' is free, an' you don't tax me too much for the frame, b'gosh, I'll take it."—Epoch.

It is said that in some parts of Africa there are birds with bills a yard in length. If the theory of transmigration of souls is a correct one, these birds must be the spirits of departed plumbers.—Yankee Blade.

Have Arrived in Salem.

Doctors of the English staff of physicians, surgeons and specialists have arrived in Salem and can be consulted until Thursday evening, May 31 at the Chemekete hotel. These surgeons return every three months, and to establish a wide reputation in Salem they offer their services for this first visit free of charge. Let every sick person call upon the doctors, and when no hope of recovery can be held out, the patient will receive the best of advice. These doctors have had large experience in the hospitals of London, Edinburgh, Dublin, Paris, St. Petersburg, New York, etc. To show the extent of their skill they offer a large premium if they fail to cure any case they undertake of consumption, cancer, catarrh, nervous debility, dyspepsia and liver complaint, skin, ear and eye diseases, rheumatism and ague. Head office, London, England, established in 1870.
